

Diabetic pet log

Meals, thirst, insulin and home readings, day by day. Bring it to every recheck.

Insulin, doses, meals and targets come from your vet. Write their instructions below and never change a dose on your own.

Your pet

Name	Dog or cat, breed
Weight (date weighed)	Vet and clinic phone
Emergency clinic	Emergency clinic phone

What your vet told you

Insulin, dose and times (as prescribed)

Meals: food, amount and times

Home testing: what, when, and what to do with the results

Daily log

Date	Time	Food eaten (all, part, none)	Water and urination (normal or more)	Insulin given (units)	Given by	Reading (if you test)	Notes

- Every day: how much your pet ate, and whether drinking and peeing seemed normal or more than usual.
- At every injection: the time, the dose you gave in the units your vet uses, and your initials.
- Test at home only if your vet asked you to, and write the result with the time.
- Ask your vet what any entry means. Whenever you are worried, call your vet or an emergency clinic.
