

Puppy weight chart

Weigh your puppy every week while they grow, then once a month. Write each weight below its column and plot it as a dot.

Puppy's name

Breed or mix

Date of birth

Scale used (the same one every time)

Weigh the same way every time: the same scale, at about the same time of day. Write your own scale on the left, for example 0, 2, 4, 6 and so on.

Growing puppy: weekly weights

Weight (lb)

Date
Age (weeks)
Weight (lb)

Puppy weight chart

Puppy's name _____

Grown dog: monthly weights

Weight (lb)

Date
Weight (lb)

How to weigh at home

1. Put the scale on a hard, flat floor, not on a rug or a counter.
2. Small puppy: use a baby scale, or weigh them in a carrier and subtract the weight of the empty carrier.
3. Bigger puppy: weigh yourself, then step on holding your puppy, and subtract your own weight.
4. Use the same scale every time: two scales can show quite different weights.
5. Praise your puppy and give a small treat after each weigh-in, so the scale stays a good place.
6. A home scale shows the trend. If you see a big change, weigh again, and confirm it on the scale at your vet's clinic.

Notes

 Pettify pettifyapp.com

Keep it on your phone too: Pettify keeps weight and temperature charts with your pet's health records, ready for the vet.
Owner's personal record. This chart has no growth norms: whether your puppy's growth is on track is for your veterinarian to judge.

App Store